ENGL 603: Bibliography and Literary Research
Dr. Ira Dworkin
T 1-4pm

Course Requirements:
- Required for MA Students

ENGL 603: Bibliography and Literary Research offers an intensive introduction to the theories, methods and practices of humanities research. Readings and presentations will establish the theoretical underpinnings and practices of bibliography and literary research. The completion of several short projects will provide a solid foundation for future work in the MA and PhD. Learning outcomes include the development of skills needed to find, interpret, use, understand, and engage with information productively and ethically.

All M.A. students must take ENGL 603. Ph.D. coursework must include ENGL 603 if the student has taken no comparable course at the M.A. level.

Credits 3. 3 Lecture Hours. Introduction of basic techniques of research and scholarly procedure in literature; research reports.
