

TEXAS A&M'S HGSO "EXPLORING THE MARGINS OF HISTORY" CONFERENCE

TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY.

Texas A&M's HGSO will host the "Exploring the Margins of History" graduate student conference this Friday and Saturday. It's FREE and OPEN to the public and emphasizes an inclusive approach to understanding historical narratives.

Our keynote speaker, Dr. Caleb McDaniel, recently received the Pulitzer Prize in History for Sweet Taste of Liberty. McDaniel's timely book traces the harrowing story of Henrietta Wood, a woman who twice survived slavery and even sued the sheriff who conspired with her employer to sell her back into bondage. And our distinguished speaker, Dr. Amy Rutenberg, author of Rough Draft, thoughtfully explores how racial inequalities and class disparities impacted military demographics in the years following World War II.

Conference Panels

February 18th & 19th, 2022

8:00am-3:30pm

Glasscock Building - Rooms 107, 300, 308, 311

Speakers

Friday, February 18th

Keynote Speaker

Dr. W. Caleb McDaniel

Rice University

4:15pm - 5:15pm

AI Engineering Building

Saturday, February 19th

Distinguished Speaker

Dr. Amy J. Rutenberg

Iowa State University

11:00am - 12:00pm

AI Engineering Building

* Special thanks to our sponsors, the History Department at Texas A&M University, the Melbern G. Glasscock Center for Humanities Research, the Albritton Center for Grand Strategy (CGS), and the Carlos H. Cantu Hispanic Education and Opportunity Endowment. In addition, we'd like to thank several Glasscock Center Humanities Working Groups for their generous support, including Caribbean and Atlantic Studies, Critical Childhood Studies, Indigenous Studies, Medieval Studies, War, Violence and Society, and Social Cultural And Political Theory.