Barbara Kurrus Memorial Award
For Best Paper on a Film Topic Written by an Undergraduate

Deadline: 3PM, March 30, of each year

If you have written a paper on a film-related topic for any of your Texas A&M courses, please consider submitting it to the Kurrus Essay Award competition. The paper must have been written for a class in the spring or fall semester of 2017. The essay must be a minimum of 2,000 words, on any topic related to the study of film, and it must use some research (manifested through the use of at least three secondary sources). The paper may have been revised subsequent to its submission for a grade in the course for which it was prepared. Please also bear in mind that minimal requirements for entries include the achievement, implicit in the paper, of the learning outcomes of the freshman writing course, ENGL 104.

Papers will be judged by a committee of three A&M professors. The award is a cash prize of $300 (which may be split in half if a tie occurs), and the winner(s) will be notified by the ICS Office of the win.

Please follow these instructions in submitting your paper:

Please affix a cover sheet stating the following:

- Your name
- The course (name, number, semester taken, and name of professor) for which the paper was originally prepared
- The title of the paper
- Your telephone number
- Your e-mail address
- That the paper is being submitted for the Kurrus Award

Papers must be submitted in pdf form, with a cover sheet, electronically to annettej@tamu.edu, or you may submit in paper form (3 exact copies) to the Interdisciplinary Critical Studies Office, located in 314 Bolton Hall, or MS 4355. Please staple or paper-clip the paper--do not submit it in a binder or a folder. All papers will be placed for review by the committee.
